

CRAIG GREEN

SPRING/SUMMER 2025

The outlines of who we're supposed to be,
and the imprints we leave behind,
walk side by side.

The rough grip of inherited codes,
and the rhythmic appeal of successive, repetitive forms, admired and followed.

Stoically familiar figures reveal intricate and delicate constructions on closer gaze.

Like a young boy exploring an engine, components are carefully taken apart.

Separating hard and soft,
rigid forms multiply and interlock,
while lightweight drapery steadily dissolves.

Hazy photographic impressions wash over the body
and hang in the air beyond.

Finally fading, a sudden return to the tangible renders everyday images sharper and more beautiful than before.
